THE GREAT NOVEL OF THE YEAR

Mary Johnston's Lewis Rand

"IN 'Lewis Rand' we have historical fiction at its very best."

—Transcript, Boston.

"One of the most finished bits of character drawing that has appeared in recent American fiction."

"A great story well worthy the fame of its popular author."

—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"OF all her novels, 'Lewis Rand' has the best right to be regarded as a literary event."

"One of the strongest works of fiction that has seen the light of day in America." —N. Y. Times.

"No better romance of early America has been evolved than this."

—Phila. Record.

NOTE. This new novel did not appear serially in any magazine.

New Romance

THE FAIR MISSISSIPPIAN

is significant in one way

IT SHOWS THAT THE AUTHOR HAS BROKEN
AWAY FROM HER TRA-DITIONS AND WRITES
OF NEW SCENES AND
NEW PEOPLE WITH ALL
HER OLD POWER . . .

THE FAIR MISSISSIPPIAN is the leading character, a fascinating widow whose wealth and position have made it possible for her to live abroad and gratify every desire. Events lead to a sudden change in her life and to her return to Mississippi and the old haunted house of her husband's family. There adventures occur which make up the most exciting part of a volume which is charged with southern motives, romance and mystery.

Since its publication late in May, more copies of "The Lure of the Mask" have been sold than have ever been sold of any other book by Harold MacGrath in the same length of time.

The publishers decline to give any figures, no doubt realizing that the actual numbers would inevitably be thought an exaggeration of the fact. It remains beyond question that "The Lure of the Mask" is proving the most popular book of its popular author. That is saying a good deal.

For there was "The Man on The Box," wonderfully successful both as book and as play.

And there was "Half a Rogue," which smashed the records for book sales as frequently as the Wright Brothers smash the aeroplane records.

PHILLPOTTS'S New Novel

THE VIRGIN IN JUDGMENT

You may confidently claim that it is the best Dartmoor novel he ever wrote. Mention that it has run six editions in England in a few months, something Phillpotts never came near doing before. Also call particular attention to the quotations from the English reviews you will find printed on the wrap.

DO THIS AND YOU WILL SELL BOOKS—LOTS OF THEM

As to

SCIENCE and IMMORTALITY

You may say that it is SIR OLIVER LODGE'S greatest book by far, that it is recognized in England as well as America. If your customer is interested in religion and the new science, show him what the New York Times Saturday Review says of it :

“Sir Oliver sees the reconciliation of science and religion through the widening of knowledge—through the growth of each beyond the present need of the swaddling clothes in which both are still enveloped—though religion he considers the less advanced. To that end science must extend its field of investigation into regions now usually regarded as too unsubstantial for scientific treatment, while religion, on its part, must invite and challenge just such rigid inquiry as science requires, and give up the premature and ignorant notion that seeking the truth in certain directions is impiety.”

IN SHORT, CUT THIS OUT, AND HAVE IT HANDY.
IT WILL PAY.

If your customer wants a really exciting, really sparkling, really unexpected and really entertaining novel do not hesitate to recommend

THE SPITFIRE

You may say that EDWARD PEPLE has here written the novel of his life, and that it is bound to interest and entertain people of every possible taste—provided only they are looking for entertainment.

With Frontispiece in Colors by Chas. Pears. Cloth, $1.50.

Justin McCarthy in The Independent (New York) comments as follows: "I may certainly venture to say that the reader who begins it will not be in the least likely to think it too long. It is a powerful story, thrilling with interest from first to last, and with character drawing which in some of its figures displays a genuine and captivating originality. . . . I only desire to call the attention of my American readers to the fact that By Their Fruits is well deserving of prompt and close attention at a time when the tendency of fiction is certainly not to occupy itself with the production of too many novels likely to arouse an earnest and absorbing interest."

GENERAL VOLUMES

LIFE'S CONTRASTS

By John Foster Fraser

Author of Red Russia, America at Work, Canada as It Is, etc. With Rembrandt Frontispiece. $1.75 net.

Mr. Foster Fraser has quickly earned a high reputation by his practical and informative books of travel. In his new book, Life's Contrasts, he breaks new ground. Having been immersed in journalism for over twenty years, he has seen every side of life, the ups and downs of Society, the humor and pathos of the people. Mr. Fraser now places before his readers a brilliant panorama showing the lives of the wealthy and the poor in different parts of the world.

TRAGIC RUSSIA

By Wieslaw Scelavus

Translated by the Viscount de Busancy. With 16 Illustrations. $2.50 net.

In view of the present state of Russia's internal affairs, this book has, in addition to its intrinsic human interest, a profound political significance. As explained in a scathing preface, the work has been written from the point of view that such a history as that of Russia is an unanswered argument against despotic power.

LETTERS of an OCEAN TRAMP

Edited by William McFee

With Colored End Papers. $1.50 net.

"This 'Ocean Tramp' has occupied his business in great waters as an engineer in the merchant service. A man of wide reading and culture, his profession has made him familiar with some of the most romantic, pathetic, and fascinating phases of life in many different parts of the earth. Being endowed with keen and active powers of observation and reflection, combined with ability to describe his impressions in virile English, the author of these Letters of an Ocean Tramp has added to the literature of the sea a gem of philosophic prose.

NAPOLEON AND HIS FELLOW TRAVELLERS

By Clement Shorter

Editor of The Sphere, Author of "Immortal Memories." With 8 Plates. $4.00 net.

A new book on Napoleon can only be justified by the fact that it contains interesting new material or material not generally available to the public. Mr. Clement Shorter has brought together some rare and little known books that have never been reprinted since their first publication, well-nigh a century ago. These include the Narrative of William Warden, which went through many editions at the time of its publication and provoked much criticism.

A rare pamphlet, privately printed by Lord Lytton, gives an account of interesting conversations with Napoleon on board the Northumberland. The vivid story of Napoleon's appearance and conversation at the time of his surrender, by George Home, in The Diary of an Aristocrat, a book suppressed on publication, also makes attractive reading. A dramatic story of one of the most vivid episodes in modern European history, told with a freshness that will prove a revelation to the present generation.

SKETCH BOOK

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE W. A. WILDE COMPANY, Boston, has added to its list of holiday publications "The Doll's Story Book," by M. I. Lovejoy, a little volume intended to amuse the leisure hours of the dolls; also, "How Richard Won Out," by Miss Mary Knight Potter, the author of "Love in Art."

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready a new novel by Stanley Olmstead, author of "The Nonchalante," entitled "The Emotionalist." The scene of the new story is laid among musical and literary people in Germany and New York, and is a study of the artistic temperament. They have also just brought out a book for young people, entitled "Little Miss Cricket at School," by Gabrielle E. Jackson.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week "The Green Domino," by Anthony Dyllington, the story of a wandering minstrel, the centre of a mystery, who with a masked pianist attracts a great deal of attention during a summer season in the Isle of Wight; also, "Arthur's," by A. Neil Lyons—Arthur being the proprietor of a coffee stall, the centre of a nightly foregathering of shady personalities, who meet to "unchain" their intellects and get to the bottom of things.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have just ready a volume of poems by Charles Hanson Towne, entitled "The Quiet Singer," in which the author has collected the best of his poems which have appeared in the leading magazines during the past few years. The opening ode, in praise of Francis Thompson, brought forth high commendation when it appeared in The Century, and is likely to give its author a definite place in American literature, while the shorter lyrics are no less distinguished for their warmth of feeling and exquisite technique.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will bring out on November 2 "The Life of James McNeill Whistler," by Elizabeth R. and Joseph Pennell, the sheets of which are in the hands of the binders. This is the biography authorized by Whistler himself, and is one of the most important contributions to that class of literature this year. They have added the following new volumes in their Romance, Adventure and Hero series: "The Romance of Bird Life," "The Romance of Modern Geology" and "The Romance of Early British Life;" "Adventures Among Wild Beasts," "Adventures on the High Seas;" "Heroes of Modern Crusades," "Heroines of Missionary Enterprise."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS last week issued W. W. Jacob's long-expected first novel, called "Salthaven," illustrated by Will Owen. The scene of the story is a little seaport town. The hero, the son of a rich shipbuilder, falls in love with the daughter of his father's oldest clerk and feels opposition on all sides of him. The love affairs of several old sea captains and the office boy and other characters are worked into a jolly, rollicking romance, told as only Mr. Jacobs can tell a sea story. To-day appear Thomas Nelson Page's "Robert E. Lee: the Southerner," which treats of the greatest soldier of his age both as a man and soldier, written with all the loyalty and affection of a true Virginian; also, "A Chronicle of Friendships," by Will H. Low, a delightful account of the author's life as art student in Paris and Barbizon forty years ago, in which he makes loving reference to Robert Louis Stevenson, Millet, St. Gaudens and other men of world-wide celebrity.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

 The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Aldrich, T. Bailey. Marjorie Daw; with il. by J. Cecil Clay. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1908. c. '01. 124 p. O. cl., †$2, boxed.

Was written in the winter of 1872-73 at Elmwood, the Cambridge home of James Russell Lowell, which Aldrich had leased while Lowell was in Europe. The story first appeared in The Atlantic Monthly for April, 1873. Later in 1873 it was issued in book form with a group of other stories as "Marjorie Daw, and other stories." The present edition is the first separate publication of the story in book form. It is to be the publishers' chief holiday publication this season.

Aleramo, Sibilla. A woman at bay, (Una donna;) authorized tr. from the Italian by Maria H. Lansdale. N. Y., Putnam, 1908. c. 6+392 p. front. D. cl., †$1.50.

Scene laid in Italy. Told in the first person. Writer begins as a child puzzling over the lives and the relations of her father and mother. She adored her father, an inventor and manufacturer; she misunderstood her quiet, undemonstrative mother. She goes to work in her father's business at the age of fifteen, and meets her fate in one of her father's workmen. At sixteen she is married to this man by her parents' wishes. Then comes her life of sex, of awakening to the realization of her capacities, of her deep study of conditions that influence woman, her practical work of reform, her unhappy home life, her devotion to her son, for whom she bears all things; her gradual understanding of her mother and father.

Atherton, Mrs. Gertrude Franklin Horn. The gorgeous isle: a romance; scene, Nevis, B. W. I., 1842; il. by C. Coles Phillips. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1908. c. 223 p. D. cl., 90 c., special net.

About 1850, when the Island of Nevis, British West Indies, was at the height of its prosperity, it became a fashionable winter resort for English people. One of the greatest hotels in the world was there, and great splendor of living among the planters. The author of "Ancestors," etc., has selected this period and theme as the background of a romantic story. The hero and heroine are English. The story is saturated with the atmosphere of the tropics, Bond, Francis. Screens and galleries in English churches; il. by 152 photographs and measured drawings. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1908. 12 +192 p. O. cl., $2.

As in his larger work on the "Gothic architecture of England," it has been the aim of the writer to present the subject from an evolutionary point of view. The story, therefore, commences with the rood and rood beam of the early Christian churches; it follows their gradual development on the one hand into the chancel screen of the parochial and collegiate churches; on the other hand into the choir screen and rood screen of the churches of the monks and the regular canons. Finally it traces to the transposition of the rood into the galleried churches of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. It is the story of growth and development conditioned by doctrinal and ritualistic changes spread over sixteen centuries. Bibliography (2 p.). Index locorum. Index rerum.

The second volume of a series of school readers intended to give a personal and living knowledge of the great world of commerce and industry. As in the first volume, "How the world is fed," the children, accompanied by the author, travel over the globe, investigating the sources of their clothing. The journeys are along geographical lines, and while studying the industries the children are learning about localities, trade routes, and the other features of transportation and commerce.

The story of Josiah Flynt Willard's life told by himself. He was the son of educated, respectable, people, but the fascination of a tramp's life was irresistible to him. He tramped and wrote books under the name of Josiah Flynt, his books being almost entirely, if not entirely, composed of his own experiences "on the road." He tramped all over this country and Europe, and when not consorting with the lowest order of tramps was visiting Tolstoy or Ibsen or some other eccentric genius. This book begins with his earliest recollections, ending with his death. A friend tells of his last days.

From 67 writers of English, ranging from De Bury to Agnes Repler, these selections of "humanity essays" on books and what they stand for in the life of the world, have been made. The editors have passed by all platitudes and trite quotations and in every instance have given enough of extract to show illuminating context; and have also included 13 complete essays by De Bury, Bacon, Addison, Lamb, Stevenson, Gissing, Leigh Hunt, Emerson, Thoreau, Henry Ward Beecher, Washington Irving and Benjamin Franklin. Very nice yet wholly Catholic judgment has culled these words on books from thinkers who were, above all, idealists and lovers of man.

The author tells the history of thirty-one of England's most famous abbeys. The legends and miracles of their saints, the days of their splendor and power when their religious life was woven into the ruling of England, followed by the age of their misfortune, when, first sacked by Henry VIII, for their treasure, then used as quarries by the country side to mend roads and ditches. They now stand many mere ruins for the tourist. The artist, Warwick Goble, follows this story with many illustrations, done in colors, picturing their "cliffs of walls nested in the gentle English landscape."

"Little Miss Cricket," it will be remembered, is the nickname of a little girl who was separated from her mother on account of an accident on a ferryboat and apparently lost. Her experiences before she is restored to her mother are related in "Little Miss Cricket" and "Little Miss Cricket's new home." Now, as Penelope Carey, a tenderly loved little maiden, she is entered by her mother at Prof. Ruhe's school, which he has called "Kinderlust." The children all have animal pets, which they look after. With the time given to them, and to her studies, Penelope is fully occupied, nevertheless manages to have other interesting and lovely happenings.

The campaign which forms the subject of this volume is one which has received scant notice in England and has been a good deal misunderstood. The misunderstanding has been mainly due to Napoleon's successful misrepresentation of the earlier part as one of his greatest and most successful efforts. The publication of the full correspondence of the time in Colonel Saski's "Campagne de 1809" and General Bonnal's criticism in his "Manœuvre de Landshut," effectually show that the Emperor was guilty of lapses which did not occur in 1805 or 1806."

Sheldon Jackson was a religious adventurer equipped with great faith, a shrewd mind and a tireless body and he laid the foundations of religious life from the Rockies to Alaska. Sheldon Jackson was born on May 18, 1834, in the Mohawk Valley, N. Y. State. In the sixties and seventies he did his great work as a Presbyterian missionary who penetrated into the vast wastes of Alaska. His biographer is professor in the Theological Seminary of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania.

The introduction gives a sketch of John Stow's life, with supplementary notes on the Stow family, documents illustrating Stow's life, a bibliography (4½ p.), etc. The aim of the notes in this edition have therefore been: to correct any errors of statement or fact which might be found; to trace as far as possible the sources of Stow's information; to supplement the text with fresh matter from Stow's own collection; to illustrate it, within a reasonable compass, by quotations from contemporary writers. There has been no intention to complete Stow's history.

Thomas, A. The witching hour; il. from scenes in the play. N. Y., Harper, 1908. c. 249 p. O. cl., *$1.50.

This story, written by the author of the play which achieved such a sensational success, is filled with the light of a new idea. Telepathy, mental suggestion, hypnotism, the telling points of the drama, are caught and held completely in the novel. The story, like the play, contains an unusual love story.

Mrs. Tremayne spent some years on preliminary studies for the biography of this brilliant personality of the 16th century, the wise and prudent Governess of the Netherlands during the long minority of her nephew, Charles v., who won the admiration and respect of the world. She was not only a great ruler, but a cultured poet, a patron of art, a lover of children, a faithful wife, a pious widow, but above all a woman of sweet feminine charm. For political reasons she was married three times before she was 22 and remained a widow after the age of 24. The account here given of the life of this great princess is chiefly from material not heretofore used by English historians.

The golden harvest; with an introd. by Margaret Beecher White; il. by W. T. Van Dresser. N. Y., Paul Elder & Co., [1908.] c. 29 p. S. bds., 75 c. net.

Contains in addition to "The little brown hen hears the song of the nightingale," a second story, "The little apple tree bears a golden harvest." Both are dainty and fanciful and carry a little moral. The illustrations are in colors. The text is in an ornamental frame in colors. The binding is Japanese wood-boards, with inlay of color.

Van Dyke, H.: Jackson, D.D. Out of doors in the Holy Land: impressions of travel in body and spirit. N. Y., Scribner, 1908. c. 12+325 p. pls. cl., $1.50 net.

Dr. Van Dyke and three companions took their own caravan and journeyed through the Holy Land in their own time and way, not in the beaten tourist track. The book is "a long journey in the spirit and a short one in the body," and Dr. Van Dyke brings the Palestine of to-day and of the past vividly before us. He also tells in the readable way of "Days off" of the camping outfit, the dragoman, of fishing on the shores of Capernaum, and swimming in the sea of Galilee.

Wallace, Lew. The chariot race from "Ben-Hur"; il. by Sigismund Ivanowski. N. Y., Harper, 1908. c. 80. 133 p. O. cl., *$1.25.

The scenes leading to the magnificent climax of the chariot race in Wallace's "Ben Hur," with the description of the race and the story of rivalry and vengeance, are well defined by the selection now offered, with the fine illustrations in color from the original paintings by Ivanowski. The decorations, typography and binding make this one of the important holiday gift-books of the year.

Warner, Anne, [Mrs. C. Ellis French.] The panther: a tale of temptation; with il. by Paul K. M. Thomas. Bost., Small, Maynard & Co., 1908. c. 91 p. O. cl., *$1.25.

The panther is temptation, which at first seems but a dark shadow, dimly seen, lurking near. As the man and woman realize and admit that there is danger the creature takes shape, at first it is merely a wee cub, but gradually gains in size and strength, and always its golden eyes gleam at the woman. The idea of temptation growing in force and power as it is yielded to making victory increasingly difficult, is the theme of this piece of symbolic writing. The illustrations and page borders in which the lithe body of the beast can always be discerned, add to the weird effect of the book.

One feels with the author that "the motor car has restored the romance to travel." With her you approach the old towns of Rouen and Amiens not by dusty railroad, but by country road. There is much of the beauty of the old Gothic cathedrals, but much also of pleasant talk of the people and history that this "flight" through their country suggests, which freedom from time tables turns into a leisurely lingering by the house of George Sand, or a moment's pleasure at a quaint old gateway—all is with a companion who delights in what she sees and makes us appreciate.

The family described by so many well known authors consists of the father, the old maid aunt, the grandmother, the daughter-in-law, the schoolgirl, the son-in-law, the married son, the married daughter, the mother, the schoolboy, Peggy, and the friend of the family. They all play their distinctive parts in the story held together by an ingenious little plot and much practiced workmanship.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 24, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

A NOTE IN SEASON.

A FEW weeks hence, when the smoke of the election battle shall have cleared away and everything will be over "except the shouting," whatever the result of the contest shall have been, the bookseller will be obliged to settle down in real earnest to prepare himself for the struggle of his business year—the holiday trade—upon the issue of which, after all, his commercial existence depends.

The retail trade, naturally timid, and influenced no doubt by the many conflicting and disconcerting rumors bound to be in the air during pre-election times, has for several months been more careful than ever in buying, and stocks in many directions must have been allowed to sink to the minimum basis. There have been exceptions, it is true. One case is reported of a large distributing house in the West having ordered two thousand separate titles from the list of one publishing house alone, involving upwards of a million books; but this and other exceptions only emphasize the rule which has been that of conservative buying.

The producer alone has remained optimistic, and has put out as many and as good and attractive books as published in any of the last ten years. And we think the publisher has chosen the right course. As the past has taught, in times of depression quite as much as in times of prosperity the stock of a bookstore is quite as much a boon to the poor as to the rich—in other words, that books do sell at all times. And as the world has a fashion of keeping young despite the croaking of the pessimist, it will again this year indulge itself in the season that stands for good will among men and for good feeling and all its concomitants, by whatever name the season be hailed; and it will continue to do so in the years to come as it has done so in the centuries gone by—in the days of adversity, during the stress of war, famine and privation as well as in the days of peace, prosperity and plenty.

The bookseller must therefore take heart and work in earnest to help to turn the tide in his favor, at any rate in his own locality. During the coming month he might utilize the comparative calm before the holiday buying actually begins, to work out his plan of campaign, to see that his stocks are ample, that they are conveniently shelved and properly displayed, so that he may be fully equipped and prepared at every point to bear the brunt of the rush when it comes; and come it will, of that he may keep himself assured.

APROPOS of our suggestion as to telephone orders, we have word from a bookseller that he makes two streets half a mile apart "dead-lines" for telephone orders; that is, orders received by telephone south and north of these two streets must be delivered inside of fifteen minutes from receipt of the order, if the book is in stock. He does this for the reason that all orders received by telephone from that territory are directly in competition with his "friend the enemy," and he has worked up quite a constituency in that district through his enterprise. Of course, the returns on the books which he delivers on these orders are for the greater part small, but the service rendered has been of material assistance in building up a bulk of business.

AS EVIDENCE that the American Publishers' Association is still active and is determined to be of service to the trade, we note that at a meeting of its Board of Directors on October 19 Frank N. Doubleday was elected treasurer to succeed Albert F. Houghton, of Houghton Mifflin Co., and Frederick A. Stokes, secretary, to succeed J. H. Sears, of D. Appleton & Co. At a meeting to be held in the near future other vacancies in the Board will be filled. The Association is planning to develop its organization along practical trade lines, of which notice will be given in due time. Its office continues under the management of F. C. J. Tessaro at 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

SCHAEFER & KORADI CELEBRATES ITS DIAMOND JUBILEE.

SCHAEFER & KORADI, the well-known firm of German publishers and booksellers of Philadelphia, celebrated, on October 20, its sixtieth anniversary, having been established on that date, in 1848, by Ernst Schaefer, at Eighth Street above Market, the site now occupied by Lit Brothers. Three years later Rudolph Koradi was taken into partnership and the firm name became Schaefer & Koradi. From the first the firm devoted itself to the publication of ancient classics, Bibles and prayer books, works of reference, school books and popular books, all in German, that had a great vogue in their day, and many of which still form a solid basis of the business.

The firm has occupied its present location at the southwest corner of Fourth and Wood Streets since 1853. Mr. Schaefer's death occurred in November, 1878, and Mr. Koradi died in January, 1907.

The business is now continued under the old firm name by Walter R. Schaefer, only son of the founder.

COPYRIGHTING BOOKS IN THIS COUNTRY AND IN ENGLAND.

THE following communication is printed for the benefit of those who may be in doubt as to whether the copyright requirements of the United States and England are simultaneous publication or registration, though probably most of those interested already know that simultaneous publication only is required to secure copyright here and in England:

87 WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO, October 13, 1908.
To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We have recently had quite a little correspondence with the Copyright Office in Washington and our representatives in London regarding the copyright in both the United States and England of books printed in the United States, and have developed one fact in this connection which we believe is not generally understood and should, therefore, be of interest to your readers.

It has been generally supposed both in England and America that it was necessary to copyright in both London and Washington on the same day. We give below quotation from a letter from our Copyright Office, also copy of a memorandum from London, showing that both offices agree that simultaneous copyrighting is unnecessary, and that it is only necessary that the day of publication or of first sale be the same in both countries.

MEDICO-DENTAL PUBLISHING CO.

Quotation from letter from Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C.

"The copyright law of this country requires the filing of title and deposit of copies in this office on or before the day of publication; the term of the copyright begins with the date of registration in this office. In England, on the contrary, the term of copyright begins upon the date of publication, and registration is not obligatory unless suit is to be brought, and such registration as is made is the record of a sworn statement of the date of publication. As the term in England begins with publication and it is required that it shall be first publication in Great Britain, it has been held by the courts that simultaneous publication in this country is sufficient to satisfy the English statutory requirements, but that is a very different matter from simultaneous registration, which neither law seems to require. If the work is printed in this country, title filed and two copies deposited prior to the date of simultaneous publication and afterwards a day of simultaneous publication is arranged in this country and in England, is that not sufficient under the laws now in force? At least until some English court has determined that the deposit of copies in this office is such publication as would bar the securing of copyright in England.

"THORVALD SOLBERG, Register of Copyrights."

Copy of letter from the Copyright Registry, Stationers' Hall, London.

"In reply to your note registration here upon the day of simultaneous publication is not necessary—if a work be simultaneously first published in the States and in England it would be copyright in England and registration could be made at any time."

SEPTEMBER 25, 1908.

BIFURCATED FICTION AT HIGH PRICES.

"THERE was a time," says the New York Tribune in a recent issue, "when a new novel cost less in America than in England. We could buy a good story in one volume for $1.50. In London the three volume novel was the standard at a much higher price. For a long time readers on both sides of the Atlantic have got their novels at the same cost, but it looks now as if the English reader could sometimes, at least, get the work of his favorite author in more convenient form and for less money than in this country. In London Joseph Conrad has just published, in 'A Set of Six,' five short stories and one longer narrative, selling the collection for six shillings. The longer tale is brought out here by the McClure Company, under the title of 'The Point of Honor,' at $1.25. Presumably the other stories in the English edition will by and by be offered to us in a volume by themselves. 'Helena's Path,' by Anthony Hope, and his 'Love's Logic, and Other Stories,' which the McClure Company issued separately some time ago, were printed together in England. If the English author thinks it good business to cut a book in two for our market, obtaining $2.50 or $3 for what he sells to his countrymen for $1.50, he will doubtless continue the practice. Yet it is conceivable that if that practice became general the American reader might rebel. He might send abroad for a book or he might dismiss it from his mind out of pique against the writer who had chosen to skimp one public while yielding full measure to another. It would be interesting to know if this new development has come to stay."

EARLY PRINTING IN HAWAII.

BOUND in turtle-shell covers, the first book of hymns printed in the Hawaiian Islands on the Mission Press, 1823, was exhibited at the Honolulu Library on September 26 by Rev. W. D. Westervelt, who is gathering data on early Hawaiian printing. The book is a very small one, and the fact that it has turtle-shell covers is reason enough for its excellent state of preservation.

But there was another specimen of early printing that was even more interesting. This consisted of a few pages of lessons printed in the Hawaiian language, and these were the original pages of the very first set of printing ever done in the Hawaiian or "Sandwich Islands," as they were then called. This was on January 7, 1822, on the Mission Press, which was the first one ever set up in Hawaii, and consequently the first ever set up west of the Rocky Mountains, or possibly of the Missouri River. This was the set at which the Governor of Oahu took a hand in turning off the press.

Then there is another little book, in which is a hand-written memorandum of all the printing done on this Mission Press. The first item that meets the eye, in quaint, old-style penmanship, the ink of which is yet clear and bright, is as follows:

"Jan. 7, 1822. First printing done in the Sandwich Islands; card of first lessons."

The same press, used at Lahainaluna, printed many important documents, and in Honolulu just subsequent to the printing of the hymn books leaflets were printed and signed by masters and mates of whaling ships relative to the conduct of their men.

TO STIMULATE THE TASTE FOR GOOD READING IN GERMANY.

JUST now in Germany there is a campaign on to stimulate the reading of good books. The reformers, according to the New York Times, "seek to reach a class of people that has not up to the present been educated up to a keen appreciation of the best literature. The method is something like that applied by the man who decreased his drink each day until finally he was a teetotaler. The person to be educated is first supplied with the thrilling literature, and from there led to real literature."

Consul Frank S. Hannah, of Madgeburg, calls attention to the new campaign. He writes:

"Circular matter is sent to the different homes explaining the plan, cost, etc., after which a messenger is sent with the first book, which in every case is a thrilling novel calculated to attract attention and to be read and enjoyed, at the same time collecting 10 pfennigs (2,38 cents) for the use of the book for one week. The weekly rate of 10 pfennigs is the entire cost to the reader, and includes the loan of the book, the bringing and taking away. The character of the books improves with each week's supply, and through this means they hope to improve the taste of the reader until he has the desire for only the best literature.

"The books are attractive in form, well printed on good paper, and at the end of each week the books are hygienically disinfected and re-covered before being given out again. The books are in no case sold, and remain the property of the company giving them out. The subscription can be commenced or stopped at any time without any further obligation upon the reader."

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN DURAND, who translated into English the historical works of Taine, died on October 19 in Paris.

EDWIN REED, who was prominent in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy some years ago, died on October 15, in Boston. Mr. Reed was born at Phippsburg, Me., on October 19, 1835. He was graduated at Bowdoin College in 1858, and then studied at Leipzig for two years. After returning to this country he embarked in the shipbuilding business at Bath, Me., and was engaged in it for twenty years. He was a member of the Maine House of Representatives in 1874-'75, and mayor of Bath in 1876-'77. In 1889 Mr. Reed published "A New View of the Temperance Question." He became interested in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy and wrote several books on the subject. They were: "Brief for Plaintiff, Bacon vs. Shakespeare," 1896; "Francis Bacon, Our Shakespeare," 1902; "Bacon and Shakespeare—Parallelisms," 1902; "Noteworthy Opinions, Pro and Con, Bacon vs. Shakespeare," 1905, and "Coincidences, Bacon and Shakespeare," 1906. He also edited "The Bacon Nonsense" in The Birmingham (England) Gazette in 1906.

A REPORT from Winnipeg, as yet unconfirmed, announces the death of James Oliver Curwood at the hands of the Lac La Ronge Indians in the Hudson Bay country. Mr. Curwood had gone into the Canadian wilds in the interests of a Detroit publishing house. He was a hunter and explorer of considerable experience, though less than thirty years old, fond of adventure and of an almost reckless daring; a newspaper man, having served in various capacities on the Detroit News; an authority on the Great Lakes; a writer of short stories, and a novelist. On the 15th inst. The Bobbs-Merrill Company published two books from Mr. Curwood's pen. One of them is "The Wolf Hunters," a boys' tale of Indian fighting in that same wilderness where the author seems to have met a tragic end. Its dedication to the Indians now assumes a pathetic irony: "To my comrades of the great northern wilderness, those faithful companions with whom I have shared the joys and hardships of the 'long silent trail,' and especially to Mukoki, my red guide and beloved friend, does the writer gratefully dedicate this volume." The other new book of Mr. Curwood's is "The Courage of Captain Plum," a romance of the Mormon colony on Beaver Island, in Lake Michigan. James Jesse Strang, who proclaimed himself king of this island during the administration of Franklin Pierce, is the central figure. Had he lived, Mr. Curwood would no doubt have risen to a place of commanding importance in American fiction. As it is, he leaves behind him a record of substantial achievement.

DR. CHARLES ELIOT NORTON, the well-known philanthropist and scholar, and for many years a member of the Harvard faculty, died on October 21, at Cambridge, Mass., where he was born on November 16, 1827. After graduating from Harvard in 1846 he entered the counting room of a Boston East India merchant with the intention of fitting himself for a commercial career. In 1848 he shipped as a supercargo on a vessel bound for India. He travelled in that country for two years, and then leisurely returned home by way of Italy, France and England. In 1855 he started on his second journey to Europe, and while there met Ruskin, with whom he formed a friendship that was to continue through life. Late in the sixties he became one of the editors of the North American Review, and from that time on devoted himself to literature and art, acting as Professor of the History of Art at Harvard from 1874 to 1898, and since then as professor emeritus. Though Dr. Norton was indefatigable as editor of the works of others, his own collection of original writings, to quote the New York Times, is small, but significant. His earliest is a monograph on the portraits of Dante written for the Florentine celebration of 1865. Three volumes—"Considerations on Some Recent Social Theories," "Historical Studies of Church Building in the Middle Ages," and "Notes of Travel and Study in Italy"—consist of collected papers, but by no means exhaust the considerable number that from time to time have come from his pen. He also made delightful prose translations of Dante's "Vita Nuova" and "Divina Commedia" in diction that is almost Biblical, and with coloring and phrasing that only a master of the two languages could have produced. As an entirely original writer Norton is at his best in his volume on mediæval church building. Norton continued and broadened the work begun by Ticknor, Longfellow and Lowell. On his given subject he delivered two courses on alternate years, "Ancient Art" and "Mediæval and Modern Art." Besides these he had a small class on the study of Dante.

PERSONAL NOTES.

A. M. LEVY, well known to the trade through his connections as traveller for Mer-shon, Wessels and others, is now connected with the Espenhain Dry Goods Co. as buyer of books and stationery.

FERNAND C. J. TESSARO, the manager of the American Publishers' Association, is the Democratic nominee for Senator in the Tenth Senatorial District, Borough of Queens, New York. Mr. Tessaro, to whom this nomination came unsought, was born in New York City, December 7, 1877, and is a son of the late Benjamin Tessaro, famous in his day as one of Inspector Byrnes's chief assistants in the old Detective Bureau in New York City. Mr. Tessaro, after graduating from the public schools and Packard's Business College, studied law in the office of the late Hon. Frederic R. Coudert. The death of his father necessitating Tessaro's discontinuance of the law, he entered commercial pursuits. For the past five years he has been manager of the American Publishers' Association.

ON October 1, Max Evers, the editor of the Börsenblatt für den deutschen Buchhandel, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his editorial management of one of the most important booktrade journals of the world. In the first twenty years of its existence the Börsenblatt was conducted by no less than nine editors. The last of these was Julius Krauss, who became editor in 1856, who upon the conclusion of his twenty-fifth year of service was succeeded by Max Evers on October 1, 1883. Evers was born in Berlin and served his apprenticeship in the booktrade with the Amelangsche Buchhandlung in Berlin, of which his uncle, Rudolf Gaertner, was the proprietor. Upon completing his wanderjahre, in 1871, he became proprietor, with his friend Julius Bloem, of the book business of G. Wildt in Stuttgart, which he conducted until 1881, when he devoted himself to journalism, until he was called to the editorial chair of the Börsenblatt. In the name of the American booktrade we wish our colleague many more years of as great usefulness to the booktrade as those he has already completed.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE birth of John Milton is to be formally celebrated in December by the Massachusetts Historical Society. If there is a region in North America in which such a celebration is peculiarly fitting it is certainly in that commonwealth, to whose founders the poet's beliefs were so dear.

MISS THEODORA PECK, author of "The Sword of Dundee," recently published by Duffield & Co., is the only woman who has ever been made an honorary member of the Society of the Army of the Potomac. When she was eighteen years of age she recited an original poem before the society, entitled "The Bivouac." A resolution was passed making her an honorary member and a medal was conferred upon her—one of the second class of the Medal of Honor Legion, of which her father, General T. S. Peck, of Burlington, is a member. Miss Peck began writing at the age of seven, and her first novel, "Hester of the Grants," was published when she was twenty.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Christian Science Monitor is the title of a daily newspaper to be published in the near future by the Christian Science Publishing Society in Boston. "It will be the mission of the Monitor," according to the official announcement of the Society, "to publish the real news of the world in a clean, wholesome manner, devoid of the sensational methods employed by so many newspapers. There will be no exploitation or illustration of vice and crime, but the aim of the editors will be to issue a paper which will be welcomed in every home where purity and refinement are cherished ideals. It is intended that the Monitor shall contain, in addition to the usual news features of the best city papers, such special departments as will make it a home paper of the highest grade—one which will appeal to good men and women everywhere who are interested in the betterment of all human conditions and the moral and spiritual advancement of the race."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

FREDERIC M. KIRCHEISEN, Geneva, Pinchat, Switzerland, has prepared and published the first volume of a "Bibliographie du Temps de Napoléon comprenant l'Histoire des États-Unis." M. Kirchesein began his researches in 1899 and has collected upwards of 70,000 titles of books and articles in reviews. From the material in hand he has made a selection to be brought out in two volumes, each containing about 800 entries. The first volume contains besides the introduction and index three parts: (1) General history, 1795-1815; (2) History of States, 1795-1815, as follows: France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Germany and Austro-Hungary, Switzerland, Great Britain and Ireland, and colonies, Poland, Russia, Spain, Portugal, Northern States, Balkan States, United States; (3) Wars, divided into twenty chapters. The second volume will treat of Napoleon and his family, memoirs, travels, etc. The work cannot fail to be of interest to historians, students and those engaged in the study of modern political history and economy, and military history. (475 p. 8°, $3.25.)

T. DE MARINIS & Co., of Florence, have brought out the catalogue of the library of the Comm. Giuseppe Cavalieri of Ferrara. The collection, though not an extensive one—the catalogue covers 2026 titles of books and manuscripts—is an extraordinary one, inasmuch as it contains so many either first or rare editions of the noble books produced in the first three centuries after the invention of printing. For this reason the catalogue should easily find its way into the reference library of the scholar, the book lover and the bibliographer. The catalogue is compiled with great care and attention to bibliographical details, and contains a number of facsimiles of title-pages and type specimens, also a photogravure of a section of the interior of Signor Cavalieri's library and half-tone reproductions of remarkable illustrations, book covers, etc. Appended to the catalogue is a list of a portion of the autographs in the possession of Signor Cavalieri, including some of the greatest names known to the world. (524 p. 8°, pap.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—George D. Fitts, well known as a dealer in stationery, books and office supplies, has formed a partnership with George Melvin, formerly of Lyme. The new firm will be styled Melvin & Fitts and will do business in books, stationery, office supplies, etc.

NEW YORK CITY.—Ralph R. Adams, 9 East Forty-second Street, bookbinder and bookseller, has made an assignment.

PORTLAND, ME.—Work on the Loring, Short & Harmon block in Monument Square, according to the Portland Daily Press, is progressing rapidly, and when completed it will be one of the finest and largest business blocks in the city. Two more stories are being added, which will make the block six stories in all. In addition to their own part of the building, Messrs. Loring, Short & Harmon will also occupy four stories over the Haskell & Jones store, making eleven stories in all occupied by this firm. The building will be substantially fireproof, and will be equipped with a modern heating plant, a complete sprinkler system throughout, passenger elevators running to the various floors and a pneumatic cash system will also be installed, running between the floors. Vaults will be built from the basement to the sixth floor and everything about the building will be modern and up to date. The shipping and office supply department will be in the basement, the retail department will occupy the entire first floor, while on the second floor will be the offices and retail wall paper department, while the wholesale wall paper department will be on the third floor. The book bindery will occupy the entire fourth floor, and will be the largest bindery in the State. The wholesale stationery and fancy goods departments will be on the fifth and sixth floors. The first and second floors of the building will be finished throughout in mahogany and fitted with the latest style of furnishings. It is expected the building will be completed about the first of November, when the firm will move back into their new and commodious quarters.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOHN LANE Co., (The Bodley Head,) have brought out Gilbert K. Chesterton's new volume, entitled "Orthodoxy," reported to be the best-selling book in London. Again Mr. Chesterton has created the sensation of the literary season, and the first edition is already exhausted.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY have made arrangements with George Randolph Chester, author of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," for the publication in book form of his papers on "Bobby Burnit and His Father's Business." This book, which promises to repeat the success of the former work, will be ready about the first of the year.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will bring out early in November a new edition of "Reminiscences of Scottish Life and Character," by Dean Ramsay. It will be illustrated in colors from original water-color drawings by H. N. Kern, and will be attractively printed and bound. In its new form the volume should be especially desirable for the holiday season.

RICHARD G. BADGER, Boston, announces a story of Boston social life by Julia De Wolf Addison, the scene of which is laid chiefly among artistic and musical circles in Boston. The book will have a frontispiece by Charles Dana Gibson. Mr. Badger will publish shortly a new humorous book by Henry A. Shute, entitled "The Country Band," with illustrations by Groesbeck.

Few people have any idea of the number of letters that are written to favorite authors. Albert Ross, who rashly promised in one of his earlier novels to personally reply to all comments, has kept his word with thousands of his readers. No matter how trivial the question, so long as address and stamp are enclosed, a reply comes from whatever part of the world Mr. Ross happens to be. Two million copies of his books have been sold.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have succeeded at last in getting out Dr. Robert MacDonald's "Mind Religion and Health," which is an appreciation of the Emanuel Movement, what it is and how its principles can be applied to our everyday life, written by the minister of Washington Avenue Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has taken no less than three degrees from Harvard and reasons with authority on philosophical and psychical questions.

MRS. SALOME CUTLER FAIRCHILD, 106 Chestnut Street, Albany, N. Y., has prepared an attractive card with the following original sentiment: "The function of the library is the development and enrichment of human life in the entire community by bringing to all the people the books that belong to them." The card, which was printed at the Riverside Press under the supervision of Bonce Rogers, measures 5 x 7½ inches, and sells at ten cents apiece or fourteen for one dollar.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on November 2 the following books for young people: "O-Heart-San," the story of a Japanese girl, by Helen Eggleston Haskell, wife of Colonel W. E. Haskell, of the Boston Herald, whose first book, "Billy's Princess," published last season, was a decided success; also, "In West Point Gray," by Florence Kimball Russell, the second in the series of the Boys' Story of the Army, which have the true atmosphere of military life, the author's father and husband being officers in the army, in which the greater part of her life was spent.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has recently received the following letter from Admiral Dewey concerning their new book, "Three Years Behind the Guns," which many believe will rank with Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast": "Many of my friends and I have read with the greatest interest 'Three Years Behind the Guns.' I can vouch for many of the facts and the description of the battle of Manila Bay is one of the best I have ever seen published. The type and active life of our American seamen of to-day is well and interestingly portrayed, and the book is worth the attention of both young and old."

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly "My Life," the autobiography of that anomalous personage, Josiah Flynt. Arthur Symons, the English critic and essayist, who was Flynt's intimate friend, says of him in the introduction, "He was born with the soul of a vagabond, into a family of gentle, exquisitely refined people; he was born so; that is all." "My Life" is a record of a strange existence. Flynt does not spare himself. His analysis of his life as a tramp and as a stoker on an ocean liner is as keen as that of his college career. He has laid bare his soul, "given his inwards," as he expressed it in a letter to a friend, and the result is a vitally interesting human document.

AN interesting memento of Nathaniel Hawthorne is in the library of a New Hampshire book collector, which will be soon sold at Libbie's in Boston. It is a copy of Oliver Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield," owned by Hawthorne while he was a student at Bowdoin College. On the title-page is the famous romancist's autograph. "Nath. Hathorne, Bow. Coll., Maine." Three of his autographs are on the flyleaf of the little book, each one being spelled "Nathaniel Hathorne, Salem, Mass." It is not every admirer of "The Marble Faun" and "The Scarlet Letter" who knows that the author spelled his name "Hathorne" when he was in Bowdoin College. It is printed "Hathorn" in the college catalogues.

BRENTANO'S promise three new volumes in the Classic Art Series which is planned to form what may be taken as a pictorial encyclopedia of pictures painted by the world's famous artists, each volume in it dealing with a single artist's work. Five volumes have already been issued on this plan—Rembrandt, Titian, Dürer, Rubens, Velasquez. The new volumes are "The Work of Raffael," reproduced in over two hundred illustrations, with a biographical introduction by Dr. Adolf Rosenberg; "The Work of Michelangelo," one hundred and sixty-nine illustrations, with an introduction by Fritz Knapp, and "The Work of Correggio," one hundred and ninety-six illustrations and an introduction by Georg Gronau.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will issue on Wednesday, October 28, "The Red City," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, a new historical novel forming the sequel to "Hugh Wynne," "Egypt and Its Monuments," a superbly illustrated volume, with text by Robert Hichens, author of "The Garden of Allah," and pictures in full color from paintings by Eugene Guérin and 40 photographs; "The Reminiscences of Lady Randolph Churchill," (now Mrs. George Cornwallis-West,) written by herself, and richly illustrated; and Helen Keller's eagerly-expected autobiography, entitled "The World I Live In," a human document of great importance, relating to the marvellous intellect that debarred of sight and sound and speech has made itself a place among the scholars of the world.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have just issued "The Altar Stairs," by G. B. Lancaster, a tale of romance and adventure in the South Seas; "Desire," by Una L. Silberrad, who has again written a novel worthy to stand with "The Good Comrade;" and Prince Pierre Troubetzkoy's "The Passer-By," a novel of up-to-date New York society. Two books on the negro problem written by authorities on their subject are "Studies in the American Race Problem," by Alfred Holt Stone, who was chosen by the Carnegie Institution to write the economic history of the negro, and "Following the Color Line," by Ray Stannard Baker, who has spent several years in close study of his subject. A little later the house will publish "Shakespeare and His Forerunners," by Sidney Lanier; "The Furniture of Our Forefathers," by Esther Singleton; and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," liberally illustrated by Arthur Rackham.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Housekeeper's Week," a volume of general household information by Marion Harland. It belongs in the same series with Marion Harland's "Complete Cook Book" and her "Complete Etiquette," the three constituting together a sort of encyclopedia for the home. In "The Housekeeper's Week" the chapters are named for days of the week, and in each instructions are given for the kind of work sacredly set aside by the housekeeper's unwritten law for that particular day; thus, in the six chapters devoted to Monday and Tuesday, every phase of washing and ironing receives attention. Under Wednesday, baking is discussed; under Thursday, cleaning of every sort; under Friday, the extermination of household pests. Saturday is concerned with the care of furniture and household utensils, and Sunday with home surgery and domestic materia medica.

DUFFIELD & Co. publish this week a Centenary edition of Edgar Allan Poe's "Tales." The stories in the volume are selected as being the most typical of Poe's genius. The pictures are by Ernest L. Blumenschein. They have also just ready three additions to the Art and Letters Library. Each volume in this series is adequately illustrated with half-tones, besides eight four-color plates. The first volume in the series, issued last month, had for its subject "Artists of the Italian Renaissance." The three volumes published this week are "Stories of the English Artists, 1700-1850;" "Stories of the Flemish Artists from Van Eyck to the Seventeenth Century," by Professor Pol de Mont, Director of the Royal Museum, Antwerp, and "The Little Flowers of St. Francis of Assisi," a newly revised and augmented version of the translation by T. W. Arnold, with a historical introduction by Dr. Guido Biagi, of the Royal Medicean and Laurentian Library in Florence.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are to have the book Queen Alexandra of England is to get out during the Christmas season to raise money for the poor, in whom she always takes great and sympathetic interest. The title is not yet made public, but the great interest centres in the fact that this Christmas book will be illustrated from snapshots taken by the Queen herself. The Queen is full of fun and takes pictures of everything that amuses her, and London is on the qui vive wondering who will get into her book. They also promise "The Ideal of a Gentleman," a mirror for gentle folks, by Dr. Smythe Palmer, a book of surprising interest, exhibiting a wonderful faculty for apt quotations and an exhaustive acquaintance with the English writers of prose and verse; and a good rollicking novel by Dorothea Conyers called "Three Girls and a Hermit," with scene in the west of Ireland and girls irresponsible, impulsive and lovable as only Irish girls can be who set out to "see life" and start to make money selling horses.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY have just ready a volume of "Sermons That Won the Masses," preached by the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters and brought out in a book that is to be volume 1 in The Message Series; "Fresh Water from Old Wells," by Rev. Dr. Robert G. Seymour, an interesting and instructive devotional book; "How to Grow in the Christian Life, or, Wells by the Way," by the Rev. Dr. Wistar Hamilton, in a handy Vest Pocket edition, is a fitting companion to the author's "Helping Hand," recently published by the Society. There are also two fine books for boys—Everett T. Tomlinson's "The Sifting of Philip," with scene in North Dakota, full of the missionary work being done on the frontier, and "Wrecked on a Coral Island," by Professor E. J. Johnson, which makes the second volume in the Pacific Series, of which "Five Months on a Derelict" was the successful initial book. "The Christian State," by Samuel Lane Batten, announced by the house, has now been postponed till January of next year.

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. have just ready three volumes of sermons: "Old Events and Modern Meanings," by Dr. Charles T. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church of New York City; "The New Things of God," by Dr. Henry A. Stimson; and "A Comfortable Faith," by Malcolm J. McLeod, who preaches so successfully in Pasadena, Cal. They have also ready this week "Present-Day Conditions in China," by Marshall Broomhall, editorial secretary of the China Inland Mission, who gives a summary of events that have happened for the most part within a twelvemonth; "The Victor," a story by Richard S. Holmes, located in the Pennsylvania mountains at the time when oil was first discovered there; "The Lady in Grey," by Clara E. Laughlin, a love story appealing to the imagination; and "If I Were a Boy," in which Lucy Elliot Keeler gives advice to boys in most palatable shape. They will have ready at once "Abba Father," by William De Witt Hyde, president of Bowdoin College, a book of everyday philosophy and meditation, full of the religion needed for everyday life.

VERY opportunely, with the opening of the opera season, comes the announcement by the Frederick A. Stokes Company of a large volume entitled "The Operas of Wagner," by J. Cuthbert Hadden, with illustrations in color by Byam Shaw. It includes all the knowledge that is necessary for an appreciation of the various operas, giving the story, the leit-motiven, and illuminating comments on the music and the drama of each. There is also a concise biographical note on Wagner, which shows the significance of his efforts, and explains his theory of music drama. Shaw's paintings are done in colors which harmonize peculiarly well with Wagner's wealth of tone.

The Great Operas Series consists of separate handbooks, containing much the same material as the larger volume. These proved popular last year, with the result that "The Mastersingers," "The Flying Dutchman," "Tristan and Isolde" and "The Ring of the Nibelung" have just been added. They are got up in a style very like that of the volume on Wagner, but are smaller and more compact. They are also by Hadden, and each contains four color-illustrations by Shaw.

JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY have just ready a timely book which will make an especial appeal to the Haverfordians who were in Philadelphia last week to attend the ceremonies commemorative of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Quaker College on the Main Line. It contains a choice selection of "Haverford Verse," and is embellished with a graceful cover design made especially for the committee by Maxfield Parrish, of the class of '92. The volume contains not only the well-known college and class songs and poems, but a number written by Haverfordians "who have more seriously listened to the Muse." Among these are F. B. Gummere, F. G. Allison, W. S. Hinchman, C. W. Stork, J. Whitall, W. H. Haines, Jr., E. A. U. Valentine, H. S. England and C. E. Pratt. The book will not only recall college memories but give pleasure to others as well. It is handsomely printed, and has been edited under the direction of a committee comprising President Sharpless, Henry T. Coates, '62; Francis B. Gummere, '72; William W. Comfort, E. Marshall Scull, Winthrop Sargent, J. Carey Thomas, John F. Wilson and Richard M. Gummere.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week "A Woman at Bay," an English translation of Sibilla Aleramo's "Una Donna," a novel in the form of an autobiography of a young woman who seeks to escape from the brutalizing yoke of a man to whom the severity of the Italian law regarding divorce binds her; "Memoirs of the Comte de Rambuteau" chamberlain to Napoleon I., by George Lequin, translated by J. C. Brogan; a work on "Investment Bonds," by F. Townhaupt, who does not theorize but tells only the plain facts of the relation of the bond to its issuing corporation and of the general investment aspect of the instrument; "The World's Gold," by Professor L. de Launay, which treats of the importance of gold in the world, the present high rate of its production, the principal questions raised by the economic study of its output and its uses, with an introduction by Charles A. Conant, author of a "History of Modern Banks of Issue," etc.; the third volume of Ferrero's "The Greatness and Decline of Rome," translated by Alfred E. Zimmern; also, "The Development of Modern Art, a Comparative study of the plastic arts, being a Contribution to a new system of aesthetics," by J. Meier-Graefe, from the German, by Florence Simonds.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish during the coming season an important book in "The Journal of Elizabeth Lady Holland," edited by the Earl of Ilchester. Lady Holland is known to the readers of memoirs and historical biographies of her time as the domineering leader of the Whig circle in England in her day; as a lady whose social talents and literary accomplishments drew to her house the wits, the politicians, and the cognoscenti of the day. She is known as the hostess who dared to give orders to such guests as Macaulay and Sydney Smith, and, what is more, expected and exacted implicit obedience. As yet, however, little has been written of her earlier years, and on these her journal will throw much light. It is a record of the years of her unhappy marriage to Sir Godfrey Webster, and after her marriage with Lord Holland is continued with more or less regularity until 1814. They will publish shortly a work on "New Light on Immortality," by E. E. Fournier D'Albe, Honorable Secretary of the Dublin Section of the Society for Psychical Research. In it the author endeavors to reach a definite conclusion upon the question of human survival after death from a comparison of the new data furnished by recent physical investigations and the result of psychical research.

For the first time the authentic story of Sir Isaac Pitman's career is told fully and completely in the new "Life," to be brought out on November 10, by Isaac Pitman & Sons. The narrative will, without doubt, have great attraction for all who use phonography. Thousands of instructors who have for many years past been engaged in imparting a knowledge of the system the "Father of Phonography" invented to innumerable students in every part of the world to which the English language has penetrated, will no doubt consider it a duty to acquaint themselves with the life story of one whose shorthand system forms, either wholly or in part, the foundation of their vocation in life. In the narrative of the genesis and development of phonography many things are related with which every teacher ought to be fully acquainted. His teaching will be more convincing and more interesting the greater the knowledge which he possesses of the life and work of the inventor of phonography, and of the circumstances under which the art was developed and brought to its present perfected state. The invention and improvement of phonography will be more fully illustrated than has ever before been attempted. There will be facsimiles of the early editions, also many portraits and illustrations, and a fully detailed account of the growth of phonography under the hand of the inventor from 1837 down to a comparatively recent period. Full bibliographical details will also form a supplemental portion of the "Life."

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have now ready their children's books for the holidays. Some of these have already been on record in our pages, but many more are just about ready. "Joan of Juniper Inn," by Emilia Elliott, reminds one of Miss Alcott's "Little Women," the children are just as real and delightful; "One Thousand Poems for Children," edited by Roger Ingpen, is a compilation from all the standard English and American poets;

"Us Fellers," by Izola L. Forrester, has pictures by B. Cory Kilvert, which show how the fellers rescued dillies, "hooked" ice and saved dogs from the dog catcher; "Jack the Giant Killer, Junior," by Dwight Burroughs, kills his giants by electricity, has automobiles, airships and many things that would have astonished old Fe-Fo-Fi Fumb of our young days, and which are all made real to even the youngest readers by means of twelve full-page illustrations by Helen Alden Knipe and Elenore Plaisted Abbott; also, "Rhymes for Wee Sweethearts," by Katharine Forrest Hamill, which contains some fifty bright jingles, sung from the point of view of the little people, beautified with illustrations and decorations in color, the sympathetic work of Curtis Wager-Smith. Gaillard Hunt's excellent biography of "John C. Calhoun," which came out in the American Crisis Series in the late summer, will be followed at once by a volume on "Stonewall" Jackson," by Henry Alexander White. This series, which is under the general editorial direction of Dr. Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer, is already assuming some size and importance. Several additional volumes are in preparation, but the next in order after the Jackson will be devoted to "John Brown," the work of W. E. Burghardt.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week "Friendship Village," by Zona Gale, by the author of "The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre," the charm of which will be appreciated by those who have lived or at least visited in a small American village, say of the middle West; "Joan of Garioch," by Albert Kinross, a story of adventure which gives, at first hand, a remarkable picture of conditions in Russia following the recent war with Japan; "The War in the Air," a story by H. G. Wells, which is described as "one of the triumphs of what has been called the scientific imagination;" "The Forbidden Boundary," stories of the Far East, by B. L. Putnam Weale, author of "The Re-shaping of the Far East;" "India, its Life and Thought," by the Rev. John P. Jones, who has lived in India for thirty years—long enough to realize the difficulties of his subject and the necessity for caution in arriving at conclusions; "Introduction to Comparative Religion," by Principal Frank B. Jevons; "De Libris," a collection of bookish essays by Austin Dobson; also, the first part of the fourth volume of "A System of Medicine," edited by Albutt and Rolleston. Last season President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, visited the University of Copenhagen and delivered there a series of lectures which attracted much attention. These lectures are shortly to be published by the Macmillan Company under the title "The American as He Is." The interest which they have already excited abroad has resulted in demands for their publication in Danish, German and French translations. Among the special topics with which President Butler deals are "The American as a Political Type," "The American Apart from His Government," and "The American and the Intellectual Life."

PICK-UPS.

WHERE art ends arts begin.

COMFORT FOR POSTERITY.

Author—Once more, my dear son, beware of cant. You speak as if the public were obliged to read books merely because they are printed. Your friends, the booksellers, would thank you to make the proposition good. The most serious grievance attending such inundations as you talk of is that they make rags dear. The multiplicity of publications does the present age no harm, and may greatly advantage that which is to succeed us.

Captain Clutterbuck—I do not see how that is to happen.

Author—The complaints in the time of Elizabeth and James of the alarming fertility of the press were as loud as they are at present, yet look at the shore over which the inundation of that age flowed, and it resembles now the Rich Strand of the Faery Queen—

"Bestrew'd all with rich array,
Of pearl and precious stones of great assay,
And all the gravel mixed with golden ore."

Believe me, that even in the most neglected works of the present age, the next may discover treasures.

—From the "Introductory Epistle" to "The Fortunes of Nigel."

NOT KEPT THAT WAY.—A man who recently applied at a public library for "Prometheus Unbound" was told with hauteur "We don't keep any unbound books."—Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

THE CHRISTMAS RUSH

How to Get Your Share of Holiday Orders

AT this busy season every live bookseller is considering plans for holiday cataloging. The question with him is how to make his Christmas announcements with dignity and effect without spending too much time and money in the production of an attractive catalog.

This problem is fully answered in the use of "The Christmas Bookshelf" (the Christmas number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY) with the dealer's own imprint. It is a magazine-catalog of about 240 pages, copiously illustrated with specimen illustrations from the best books of the year. It contains a most attractive assemblage of the best new issues of all the publishers, with ample descriptive notices. A feature is the carefully prepared purchase list, which, with the publishers' own advertisements, gives a comprehensive survey of about all a bookseller would be likely to keep in stock during the holiday season.

It is the kind of a Christmas Catalog your customers would feel flattered in receiving!

The price, for editions with the bookseller's own imprint, is based on cost of paper and press work only, without counting cost of composition, and is, therefore, much below the cost of a catalog made by any bookseller for himself.

COST OF "THE CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF," IMPRINTED

For 100 Copies	-	-	-	-	$10.00
" 250 "	-	-	-	-	20.00
" 500 "	-	-	-	-	38.00
" 1000 "	-	-	-	-	75.00

We remind you that it is necessary to have orders early, so as to regulate the size of the edition. Last year several belated orders came after printing was completed and edition sold.

We will be glad to send you a sample copy of last year's issue on request.

ANNOUNCE THE RECENT PUBLICATION

—OF—

RICHARD THE THIRD

Edited by

HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, JR.

BEING THE SIXTEENTH VOLUME OF THE NEW VARIORUM EDITION of the works of

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

THOSE interested in the study of Shakespeare's plays will recall that a few years ago Horace Howard Furness, Jr., prepared a revision of his father's Variorum Edition of "Macbeth," which was most favorably received by Shakespearian critics. It manifested ability and scholarship, and demonstrated the wisdom of Dr. Furness in associating his son with this invaluable work, so stupendous as to be beyond the ability of a lifetime to complete.

J. B. Lippincott Company is therefore now pleased to announce Mr. Furness's second contribution to this monumental edition, "The Tragedy of Richard the Third."

EXTRACTS FROM EARLY CRITICISMS

"With this edition of King Richard III., Mr. Furness fully earns his spurs. . . . The 'Variorum' volumes do away the need of a whole Shakespearian library."—Sun, New York.

"The son is continuing the work begun by the father, and he shows in this volume a rare equipment for the task of completing the monumental Variorum Shakespeare."—Evening Transcript, Boston.
